Toil and Trouble
Eat Artichokes
The Bull Is Honest
Mr. Rockefeller Builds

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

AGAIN THE WORLD wakes, troubled, by news rather depressing.

New York radicals, "reds," organized demonstrations, not very effective; one "red" boy hit a policeman.

You cannot change the social order by biting.

Brazil sends news of regular troops deserting, and big American corporations' representatives in South America forward information less reassuring.

Brazilian authorities buy fighting planes from France, which has plenty. Rebels assert that many companies and regiments have joined the revolt.

PROVIDENCE helps those that help themselves. California artichoke growers know it.

Instead of fighting each other with price cuts, or complaining without action, these men combine in a fund to advertise their product.

That's the modern way of improving conditions. First produce what people want, then let the people know that you have it by advertising.

Artichokes are rich in most important vitamines, the leaves, eaten one at a time with an excellent sauce, Hollandaise or Hollandaise Vinagrette, teach children to eat slowly.

The substantial artichoke foundation provides in nourishing form the "roughage" that men need.

MR. SIDNEY FRANKLIN, born in Brooklyn, and perhaps possessing ancestors that lived 3,000 years ago on the Island of Crete, went to Spain, became a bull-fighter. Now he goes into vaudeville, safer than the bull ring, and says bull fighting is absolutely a "fair, honest, brave" sport, because "no way has been found to bribe the bull." In that respect, bull fighting is unlike prize fighting.

ON JANUARY 1 John D. Rockefeller Jr. will begin construction of his great civic center in the heart of New York.

A good business man, he probably wants some income from the property, for which he has been paying ground rent to Columbia college at the rate of $3,000,000 a year.

The younger Mr. Rockefeller devoting time and energy to building, to admirably useful restoration of ancient, priceless buildings, and to construction of a great center in New York, reminds you of the Medici family, of whom the founder strongly resembled John D. Rockefeller Sr.

The older Medici made money, organized commerce.

THREE KILLED IN CLEVELAND TRAIN CRASH

FOUR OTHERS INJURED

All Victims Members of Crews of Two Mail Train Engines Telescoped.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 17—Three trainmen were killed, two critically injured, and three others suffered lesser hurts when two mail trains of the Big Four railroad crashed head-on inside the city limits here today. The trains collided while rounding a curve near the Fulton road bridge, at an estimated speed of 30-miles an hour.

Explanation of what kind of mistake sent the big locomotives rushing at each other on the same track was not immediately forthcoming, but an investigation by railroad officials and the Ohio public utilities commission was started at once.

Fireman Henry Sprouse of the eastbound train and Flagman Charles Graff, 65, and Conductor Jerry Dixon, 50, of the westbound train were killed. Engineer Frank McCarthy of the westbound train and Fireman Clarence Sheffield, 35, of the eastbound train were seriously scalded. Thomas Henahan 59, engineer on the eastbound train and William F. Dee, flagman on the westbound train, suffered minor injuries. All were from Cleveland.

The east bound train was arriving from Bellefontaine on its daily run. It carried two mail cars only. The other train was two mail and one baggage cars, was going to the Linndale station where it was to have been coupled with a St. Louis passenger train. No passengers were aboard either of the wrecked trains.

On Marion Route

Both trains operate on the Big Four line running through Marion.

"The signals said I had the right of way," Henahan maintained as he was being taken to a hospital.

Rain Obscures Vision

A drizzling rain in the early morning darkness, and the fact the big passenger locomotives which were used on the trains, were going around the curve, obscured the vision of both crews. There was evidence that the men did not see the looming crash until the engines were almost upon each other.

Conductor Dixon, riding in the engine cab, made a frantic effort to jump just before the crash. He was too late and was crushed to death between the locomotive and the tender as they telescoped together. Firemen had to use steel saws and torches to release the body.

Dee was the least severely injured, but was unable to tell what happened because he was riding on the rear of the train.

While aiding in the search to make sure that all the bodies had been removed, Patrolman Edward White suffered a possible fractured ankle when he jumped from the top of one of the tenders.

Switch engines removed the mail coaches soon after the crash, but wrecking crews were still at work trying to free the locomotives after daylight.

Two Scalded to Death

Sprouse and Graff were scalded to death in escaping steam, while Dixon was pinned between the cab and the tender trying to jump. McCarthy and Sheffield were too seriously injured to tell how the wreck occurred.

Henahan, whose left arm was paralyzed, said the eastbound train was rounding the curve at a slow rate of speed. There was no warning of the crash, he said, and he had only a glimpse of the head light of the oncoming locomotive before the impact. Dee saved his life by jumping and was knocked unconscious.

Mixup in Dispatching Believed Responsible for Wreck.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 17—A train dispatcher and a signal man apparently were responsible for the Big Four wreck at Cleveland early today in which three men were killed, General Manager C. S. Ballard of the Big Four was advised today.

A report filed by W. H. Sullivan, general superintendent of the Cleveland Terminal division, said a signal man, on authority of a dispatcher, headed one of the trains in on the wrong track.

TEMPERATURE DROPS AS WAVE HITS CITY

Full Force of First Cold Snap Expected To Be Felt Here Tonight; West and Middle-West Get Snow.

Marionites arose this morning to find the first cold snap, predicted for tonight, well under way. The mercury slumped to the 44-degree mark at noon and continued to drop while a strong wind drove a light rain in its path.

Beginning at the high of 76 yesterday, the mercury scored a 26-degree drop to a low of 50 last night. Sunrise this morning brought still lower temperatures and shortly before noon the mercury had slumped to 44. Weather advices today indicate the downward plunge of temperatures may not end until the freezing mark has been reached. Heavy frosts are predicted for tonight.

Chicago at Freezing

While first indications of the cold wave were being felt here, western sections were caught in the grip of the first winter weather. Temperatures neared the freezing point in Chicago as the cold wave swept across that city from central Canada and the Rocky mountain re-

BREAKS PAROLE, GETS THREE YEARS IN PEN

Hostetter Given Sentence on Old Charge After Arrest for Burglary.

Hobart Hostetter, 20, of 501 Scranton avenue, today was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary on a charge of automobile stealing when Judge George B. Scofield haled him into court for violating a parole.

Hostetter pleaded guilty to the charge after being indicted by the grand jury a few weeks ago, but his sentencing was suspended by Judge Scofield on the youth's promise to keep out of trouble for a year's period. He was arrested this week in connection with a store robbery, however, and when municipal court bound him over to the grand jury Judge Scofield called the youth before him and gave him the three-year sentence on the older charge.

The youth has served time in the Mansfield reformatory.

He is the third man to be given a penitentiary sentence this month because of violations of paroles.

The store robbery to which Hostetter pleaded guilty was that of Smith's Confectionery on Silver street near the C. & O. railroad on last Saturday night, when a small quantity of gum, candy and tobacco was taken.

Hostetter was implicated in the robbery with Kuyutis Boggs, 18, of 231 Edwards street, who also was bound over to the grand jury.

DEFEAT REPEAL PROPOSAL

Action Taken Without Debate as Convention Nears Close.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 17—The American Federation of Labor today reiterated its commitment to a policy in favor of modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent beer and defeated resolutions demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

The prohibition problem was disposed of without the debate that had been anticipated since the opening of the convention. The only delegates to speak on the defeated resolutions were the authors, Arthur J. Beauregard of the Providence Central Federated union, and Edward Flore, of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Beverage Dispensers' International Alliance.

Flore protested that the delegates had been deprived by "the clever manoeuvering of the resolutions committee" of an opportunity to discuss the defeated resolutions.

With the overwhelming choice for Vancouver, B. C., a "wet" city, for the 1931 convention, over Columbus, Ohio, the liquor issue crept indirectly into the discussion as the convention neared its close today.

In opposing the selection of Vancouver, William P. Clarke, president of the Flint Glass Workers, and Charles P. Howard, president of the Typographical Union, charged that a desire for liquor was behind the selection of Vancouver.

Mayor Walker Predicts End of Official Leniency After Outbreak in N. Y.

CITY HALL IS INVADED

Communist Starts Clash When He Calls Walker "Dirty Grafter."

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—An end to official leniency toward Communist demonstrations was predicted today as the party's candidate for lieutenant governor and several red sympathizers awaited arraignment on charges growing out of a series of riots yesterday.

Mayor Walker, whom one Communist called a "dirty grafter" in a meeting of the board of estimate just before night sticks came into play, declared today the rioters got what they deserved from the police.

Every opportunity for orderly protest was given a Communist delegation admitted to a budget meeting of the board of estimate, he said, but when their spokesman "insisted on discussing unemployment out of its proper place in the business calendar, I asked if they preferred to be orderly or disorderly. They preferred to be disorderly."

Riot Futile, Mayor Says

The administration, the mayor said, "has done everything it can to relieve unemployment, but riot will accomplish nothing constructive."

Sixteen persons were under arrest today as the result of Communist riots which came to a climax when a party of reds invaded city hall.

An attempt by a group of Communists to present an unemployment petition at a meeting of the board of estimate over which the mayor was presiding precipitated the disturbance in the city hall.

Another clash occurred in City Hall park and at Broadway and Barclay street, in which two plate glass windows in the Woolworth building were smashed.

A young woman suffered minor injuries when she was trampled by a policeman's horse and dozens

Texas Takes Life of Sightless Murderer Who Killed Peace Officer.

By International News Service

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 17—Groping his sightless way to the electric chair, Joyce Shepard, convicted murderer of Jake Owens, Fisher county peace officer, was executed shortly after midnight last night.

Just before his execution it became known that, two weeks ago, Shepard blinded himself. Prison officials said he extracted a nail from a ventilator in his cell and gouged out both of his eyes with it.

"It is better for a part of the body to die," he said, "than to be cast into hell." Lee Simons, manager of the prison, kept the act secret because, he said, he did not deem it "proper for publication."

SUSPECTED KIDNAPER OF HEIRESS CAUGHT

Police Attempt To Link Raymond Rizzo with Abduction of Mrs McKinley.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 17—Police today were attempting to connect Raymond Rizzo, 21, New York City, with the kidnaping of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, heiress, abducted from her Greenfield, Mo., home and later released.

The prisoner, arrested here late last night, was said by police to answer in detail the description of the kidnaper who forced the 24-year-old expectant mother to drive him away in her car, but released her after they had spent the night lost in the woods.

Fingerprints on a toothbrush in a suitcase cast aside by the kidnaper were looked upon by police as a positive means of establishing whether Rizzo was the kidnaper.

Scars on his hands and face corresponded to those mentioned by Mrs. McKinley in describing the man.

Rizzo denied connection with the crime.

Fictitious Label Causes Honest Man To Get "Stuck"

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., Oct. 17—A quart of Canadian maple syrup purchased by a Mansfield woman in Canada, has unwittingly caused an honest man to become "stuck."

The purchaser, returning from a vacation in the dominion, bought the liquid from a farmer who placed it in a whisky bottle. The customs officials sniffed it—and she passed back into the United States. Placing it in a grip, she boarded a train—and opened the valise while she went on the observation platform.

When she returned the bottle with its ornate label and the brown contents were gone. In their place was a $20 bill.

"Here's some money for this—which I need worse than you do," said the note.

Cooking School Closes Today; Attendance High

"Luck doesn't enter into cookery," Mrs. Emily M Lautz told her audience Thursday afternoon at The Marion Star's free cooking school in The Star auditorium. Yesterday's attendance was the largest of the week. The school will close with this afternoon's session.

Mrs. Lautz stressed oven cookery and suggested a number of palatable menus which could be cooked in the oven. She told her audience that too much heat spoiled many an otherwise very fine and well prepared meal and pointed out the economic and health value to be found in a carefully prepared and cooked meal.

SEEK IDENTITY OF STRANGERS IN HOTEL

Efforts To Find Assailants of Diamond Centers on Two Persons.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—Efforts of police seeking the assailants of Jack "Legs" Diamond centered today upon learning the identity of two strangers seen in the Monticello hotel about the time Diamond was shot last Sunday.

The first definite information concerning them was obtained from John Hughes, an elevator boy, in the hotel, who told District Attorney Crain of riding up to the eighth floor to take a key to Diamond who had telephoned down that he wanted to use room 829. He said two men in the elevator got off at the same floor.

Crain said he intended to question another youth, named Breslin, who was operating the elevator, concerning the two.

The time the two strangers appeared coincides with incidents related to Police Commissioner Mulrooney to Miss Marion Roberts, dancer, who was with Diamond in the hotel.

MAIN STREET OPEN TO GRID TRAFFIC

Vanguard of Fans Going to Michigan-State Game in City Today.

Main street was thrown open to football-fan traffic at noon today by order of Service Director D. J. Harlow as the first of the caravan of Michigan football fans began pouring through the city for the State-Michigan football game in Columbus Saturday.

Work on the street was suspended for the week-end eliminating a detour for the hundreds of automobiles expected to pass through Marion to and from the game.

That motorists would encounter no detour was the word passed along to automobile clubs in Michigan and northern Ohio this morning Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto Club.

Dozens of Michigan fans will drive to Marion after the game Saturday and spend the night here before continuing their homeward journey. Capacity reservations have been made in Marion hotels.

GARMENT SHOP BOMB TARGET, POLICE THINK

SCENE OF LABOR TROUBLE

Find Remnants of What Is Thought To Have Been Infernal Machine.

By International News Service

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 17—A terrific explosion, apparently carefully planned but prematurely executed, according to the police and the fire department, shattered the 12-story Garment Capitol building today, seriously injured 35 persons, littered the wholesale district with debris, caused damage estimated at $1,000,000 and shook all of Los Angeles.

The explosion was on the fourth floor of the structure where a number of garment-making firms are located. A police guard has been maintained over the buildings for the last month during which time overt acts had been threatened if garent firms did not allow their employes to organize.

Fire Chief Ralph Scott declared that the explosion could have been caused by a dynamite bomb or the premises could have been sprinkled with high test gasoline which on being exploded by fuses would leave practically no odor. He declared the explosion obviously was not caused by escaping gas.

With the finding of bits and pieces of what appeared to be remnants of a time bomb near the scene of the explosion, it was said at police headquarters that there had been frequent labor disturbances in the garment building in the last month.

Bombing Suspected

Members of the arson squad of the police department said their early investigation indicated the explosion was caused by a bomb. Fire Chief Ralph J. Scott, however, said he believed accumulated gas or spontaneous combustion from lint was responsible for the explosion.

There are 24 clothing factories in the 12-story Garment Capitol building and several hundred workers, men and women, were hurled about in their loft rooms by the blast.

Every ambulance in the city was summoned and many private automobiles were commandeered by police to carry injured persons to the hospitals.

Many Workers Injured

The morning shift had just begun work when the blast occurred. Besides those injured by flying debris, hurled against machinery and scorched by the flames, scores of other suffered concussion shocks, according to medical attendants.

Firemen said had flames burst out following the explosion, the casualty list would have been terrific in the crowded loft rooms.

Five hundred policemen, arriving in speed cars, formed a cordon around the wrecked district driving back thousands of curious persons who sought to invade the area.

Plate glass windows were shattered for many blocks around and pedestrians were endangered by the collapse of several huge electrical signs, which were torn from nearby buildings.

Woman Hit by Glass

An unidentified woman crossing the street more than a block from the Garment Capitol building was probably fatally injured when she was struck by a heavy piece of glass.

Eyewitnesses said a sheet of flame bathed the street facade of the building as the blast rocked it.

At Eighth and Los Angeles streets, less than half a block from the explosion, cogwheels and small springs from a complicated mechanism clattered to the pavement.

According to fire inspectors Wolfe and Johnson of the arson squad, the mechanism may have been parts of an infernal machine. The inspectors added they were investigating a theory that the building was bombed by disgruntled garment workers, who recently went out on strike.

They declared police have received numerous calls within the past week for protection of workers in the building. The calls came from strike-breakers, they said.

By International News Service

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 17—"I thought the entire world had blown up!

"I was thrown from my automobile to the sidewalk. I regained my feet with a regular cloudburst of glass showering down upon me."

This was the way Detective Lieutenant Paul Phelps, member of the police intelligence bureau, who for eight weeks has been on duty in front of the Garment Capitol building, described the explosion.

About 20 or 25 people were gathered at the entrance of the building when the blast occurred, he said.

HARD WORK DECREED FOR LEOPOLD, LOEB

First Given Them in Six-Year Imprisonment; Sent to Prison Shop.

By The Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 17—Hard work—the first since their imprisonment six years ago—was the order of the day for Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, slayers of Bobby Franks of Chicago.

Both were directed to report for duty in the state prison shops. Heretofore Loeb has been employed as a messenger. Leopold has been secretary to the prison chaplain. His failure to properly deliver a summons to a prisoner the chaplain wished to interview was assigned as the reason for Leopold's transfer to the workshop.

Warden Henry C. Hill said Leopold had been transferred to the state's old prison while Loeb had been sent to the new one at Stateville, near here.

"I do not believe they should be under the same roof," he said.

PASTOR'S WIFE HURT IN TRAFFIC MISHAP

Mrs. D. E. Miller Suffers Broken Nose as Car Stops Suddenly.

Mrs. D. E. Miller of 168 Clover avenue, wife of Rev. Miller, pastor of First Church of Nazarene, suffered a broken nose in an accident last night in Caledonia.

The Millers were returning from a visit in Shelby and their son Edwin was driving their machine. Two small children ran out from behind a parked car, in front of the Miller car. She was given first aid in Caledonia and brought to Marion for treatment. The windshield of the machine was broken.

Premier Mussolini of Italy has taken over the censoring of theatrical productions. It's a cinch that there will not be any questioning of at least one censor's findings.

There were 1,116,746 tons of shipping under construction in the shipyards of Great Britain and Ireland to 212,974 tons in the yards of the United States, which stands second in ship building at present. Britain may be in harder times financially than any other gerat power, but it is manifest that it isn't preventing her from building to maintain her immense tonnage superiority on the high seas.

A cable from Helsingfors says the Finns suspect a man who arrived there on a passport issued to an engineer to be Admiral Krjukow, of the soviet Russian navy, who is seeking to spy on the navy of Finland. We live to learn. Here we have the first intimation that has come to us that the Finnish navy isn't the fellow to that of Switzerland.

This year's census of the area of the British metropolis covered by the London county council shows a population of 4,430,000, a falling-off of 94,000 during the last eight years. The population story of London is that of New York and other large American cities; the people are leaving congested districts to take up homes in suburban areas where they may have air and sunshine.

Lady Nancy Astor is quoted as saying that character depends on thinking for yourself, but not of yourself." Wonder if Nancy ever takes a peek at herself to see if she has her complexion on straight?

Henry Ford is reported in a London cable to be considering the purchase of an estate near that city, from which it is taken that he plans to spend more time in England than formerly. Wouldn't it prove an awful shock to Henry should he wake up some morning and find that the British had hooked him for the payment of an income tax?

Both high and low test gasoline dropped three cents a gallon up in northeastern Ohio, this week, overproduction being the assigned cause. Why worry about the cost of non-essentials such as food and clothing, so long as gasoline is cheap?

British Wing Commander Kingsford-Smith this week broke the air record from England to India by flying from London to Allahabad in five and a half days and beating the record made by Bert Hinkler by two and a half days, which probably does not so much reflect the comparative skill of the two airmen as the improvement made in the speed qualities of airplanes during the last three years

The Manchester Guardian likens the breaking down of law in the United States to that in China, holding public apathy to crime the cause. The Guardian is manifestly pretty close to the mark regarding the cause, but what's so hard to understand is why it thus knocks China.

The Registration Figures.

If there is any disappointment in the city over the registration figures, it has not been made manifest. The very general feeling is that a registration of 11,875 is all that could have been anticipated, all the conditions being considered, and some citizens are inclined to look on it as a surprisingly good one.

Had the present been a presidential year, a registration of approximately 12,000 would have been disappointing, but half way between presidential elections, the number of citizens qualifying to vote is just about what might have been expected in the light of the votes cast in so-called off years in the past.

And there is this to be said also: a registration of 11,875 is all that reasonably could have been anticipated in a campaign which seemingly has aroused less interest than ordinarily.

If no more interest is being manifested throughout the state than there is locally, this fall's vote, barring a late campaign outburst of political enthusiasm, will be a rather light one. There's always the possibility, it is true, that there may be a greater interest than has been manifested, but if there is such a latent interest it is being splendidly concealed.

What America Needs Is Courage.

Taking issue with those who hold that confidence is all that America needs to recover from the present economic depression and bring about the return of prosperous conditions, Eugene R. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve bank, of Atlanta, Georgia, a day or two ago told the Investment Bankers' association, in convention there, that "impregnable courage and not merely confidence is needed in American business," and he went on to say that, if the country is to attain a solid foundation for prosperity, the American people must be just and pay their debts, and that that can be done only by manifesting courage in the practicing of economy.

Governor Black asserted that the country had been living too luxuriously; that the trouble from which the country is suffering today did not begin thirteen months ago, but had its inception far back beyond that; that for years the people of America had been expending beyond their means, and he held that economy was the road, and the only road, by which to escape present-day conditions and return to normal. He made plain that he was utterly out of sympathy with the idea that criticism of luxurious living must be held tabu.

"We can not have permanent prosperity," Governor Black said, "when there is a load of debt around our necks. A mortgage on the home destroys the peace of the fireside. If the mortgages on our farms in America were paid there would be no farm problem.

"It is not confidence we need in America. It is certainty we need in America. It is the knowledge on the part of Americans that business in America has an impregnable courage.

"I am talking plainly to you men," Governor Black continued, "I don't know whether you agree with me or not. But you go back home and look into the faces of your business men and read the shadows in their eyes, and determine for yourself whether what is the matter with America is timidity or fear. There is not so much mistrust in America. There is distrust in America."

It has frequently been proclaimed and repeatly maintained that there must be no recession in the standard of American living. Well and good, if we can maintain our present standard of living without a recession in the standard of American honesty. All of us, or at least a great element of us, have been living in an atmosphere of optimism in making our expenditures, and have been living beyond our means, seemingly unmindful of the sure coming of the day of reckoning. It came, and it found us unprepared, with consequent country-wide distress.

It is well and good that the standard of American living should be maintained, but it should not be maintained at a height of luxury which exceeds possibility of meeting the cost of it. Honesty demands that we pay for what we buy. Honesty demands that we should not buy beyond our ability to pay. There can be no permanency to any high standard of living the cost of which can not be met.

The present year brought the greatest drought in the history of the nation, the "precipitation" the country over averaging only eighty-seven per cent. of normal from January 1 to September 1 and only seventy per cent. in the crop-growing months of July and August. That there may be no mistaken conclusion, it may be well to state that by the term, "precipitation," rainfall is meant, not the stuff half the country is taking to steal away its brains.

The Disgrace of Oklahoma City.

The story from Oklahoma City reciting how two Communists forcibly jumped on to the car of Secretary of War Hurley as he was leaving the scene of an address made by him there, "assaulting, cursing and threatening him," if not overdrawn, is the story of the disgrace of Oklahoma City.

As the story goes, the two reds taunted, jibed at, insulted and threatened Colonel Patrick, alike as an individual and as secretary of war, with the result that the two were arrested and committed to jail in default of $500 bail each on charges of rioting.

One reading the story can not help but feel that, if the facts were as stated, Oklahoma City was decidedly remiss in not providing such police escort on the occasion of the coming of a distinguished son of the state for the delivering of an address as to make impossible such an occurrence as detailed. And it is difficult to believe that a crowd of 200 Oklahomans would stand idly and witness such an assault as described and not beat up the two reds mercilessly, as they deserved to be beaten.

It's hard to vision either the government of Oklahoma City so remiss or the people of that city so supine at the perpetration of an outrage such as has been pictured.

One of the largest, if not the largest, gum manufacturing corporation in the country reports a net profit of $3,395,164 for the three months ended September 30 compared with a net profit of $3,322,923 for the corresponding period in 1929. No matter what the depression, the American public refuses to deny itself the actual necessities of life.

Statistics show that the yearly average consumption of what thirty-four years ago was 5.30 bushels while at present it is but 4.26 bushels, despite the fact that flour prices having dropped over two dollars a barrel in most markets are now lower than at any time during the thirty-four-year period. Come to think of it, we may have here an explanation in part of the recent slump in wheat prices.

Another Tammany judge has refused to appear before the special grand jury investigating the judicial scandal there. It might work for the conservation of newspaper space to list those who appear and let the public draw its own inferences.

Ann Christy, of the Hollywood movie world, is suing a corporation out there for $100,000 damages, claiming that she ran into one of its ditching machines, causing a multiple fracture of the bridge bones in her nose and, in addition, a cut lip and a deep cut on a dimpled knee. The injured nose and lip charge may pass muster, but the recent knee skirt vogue thoroughly shattered the dimple knee stuff. Judged by the recent street displays, dimpled knees are a degree or two rarer than dinosaur eggs.

Editorial Opinion.

A QUESTION OF JUDICIAL PROPRIETY.

The Chicago Bar association professes to be shocked at the outspoken attacks of Judge Lyle upon the gangsters and their defenders, and advises the voters that he is lacking in "judicial propriety" and should not be re-elected.

It is true that Judge Lyle, in his fight to break the domination of Chicago by gang rule, has taken the public into his confidence in a way that one does not usually associate with the dignity and reserve ordinarily expected from the bench. But there are some other things true of the situation in Chicago, as regards the courts, the bar and the gangsters.

One of these is that the gangsters who have been making a farce of police protection against crime in Chicago have long been getting, right from the judicial bench, what amounts to official protection in the commission of crime. Lawyers who are unworthy of the name know judges on the bench whom they do not hesitate to wake up between midnight and morning in order to get some well-known gang offender out of the hands of the police on a bail bond so small in amount as to be a mere joke.

And the Bar association, so quick to be shocked by the outspoken opposition of Judge Lyle to this state of affairs, has shown but little evidence of being shocked by the conduct of those judges who thus show sympathy with the gangsters, or of any disposition to deal with those of their own number who resort to illegal and disgraceful methods in their defense of gang criminals under arrest or indictment.

Decent and law-abiding citizens in Chicago are not likely to scratch the name of Judge Lyle because, under such circumstances, he becomes too impatient of gang rule to observe all the niceties of traditional judicial propriety, as defined by the Chicago Bar association.—Columbus Dispatch.

Daniel Webster at Chillicothe.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Chillicothe, the ancient capital of Ohio, was attractive to the noted men of the eastern states long after it had ceased to be the state capital, and many of them visited it when passing through the state, who did not stop at the new capital—Columbus. This was due, probably in part, to the fact that many men prominent in public affairs both in state and nation were living in Chillicothe.

But the topography of the country around Chillicothe was more attractive to the eye of the easterner, to whom a flat landscape is never pleasing. One noted easterner who visited Chillicothe and who was enchanted by its location was Daniel Webster. He came to stay for a day, but remained for many of them. He visited the country around the city, ascended Mount Logan, and spent many hours viewing the scenery from that elevation

New England offered nothing of this kind, for the eye of the beholder rested upon fertile crops—immense fields of corn and wheat, farms of 1,000 acres, with great fields in which fattening cattle were grazing—nothing such as the valley of the Scioto and Paint creek afforded to a person on Mount Logan in that day was to be found in New England.

Ever after that, it is said, when Ohio people were introduced to Mr. Webster, he launched into a panegyric upon the beauty and the richness of the country around Chillicothe.

Physical Examination.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In most of our large cities and towns today health officials and educational authorities are cooperating in a movement for better health and greater public safety. In the past, the schools paid too little attention to teaching the child how to live. Vast progress is being made in these matters.

The correction of physical defects after careful physical examination is the right of every child. The school should keep a careful record of each child. There is greater certainty then that the physical defect will be remedied.

We shall have a better race when such matters as personal hygiene and sanitation are made a part of every child's education. No boy or girl should go through life handicapped by physical defects and poor health. Many of these disabilities are curable.

Cleanliness of the body, care of the eyes, the teeth and all the organs are absolutely essential to good health and success in life. Tonsils, if actually diseased, and adenoids, if they are obstructive, should be removed. A child can not do justice to himself in his studies if he has infection from one or another source.

When your child complains of what you perhaps call "growing pains" the probability is that one of these hidden sources of infection is breeding rheumatism. With rheumatism comes heart weakness or infection of some kind. There are thousands of cases of so-called "rheumatic heart" among children from these causes. Some cases of heart disease discovered in later years can be traced back to childhood.

A complete physical examination of your child, either by the family or school physician, will determine whether the lungs and heart are in good condition. It will show, too, whether the child can exercise vigorously and normally, or whether care must be taken to save the heart from too violent activity.

Only too often the athletic boy or girl abuses the heart until the muscles give way. Then there is developed the "athlete's heart." This may bring with it months or years of trouble from the weakened condition of this organ.

See that your child's new school shoes are comfortable and sensible. They should be well-fitting.

The rapidly growing child is using up great quantities of energy in school work and play. On this account the diet should be ample and carefully regulated. Regular habits of eating are important. Every precaution should be taken to direct the eating so as to prevent indigestion and at the same time to increase proper nourishment.

For these reasons see that your school child has a thorough physical examination. At the same time have one for yourself and all your family. It is by this prevention of sickness and disease that good health is made sure.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

C.P. Q—What causes dark rings underneath the eyes and what can be done to cure them?

2—What causes itching of the toes and what will relieve the condition?

3—What would cause the gums to pain? The teeth have been removed.

A—Constipation, lack of sleep, anemia are all apt to cause this symptom. A general examination will not only locate the cause, but will also suggest the necessary treatment.

2—Perspiration or eczema would be apt to cause the trouble in question. Bathing the feet in warm water to which a little powdered alum has been added should be generally helpful. If there is a rash or irritation see your doctor.

3—You may have caught cold. Have your dentist advise you.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc

X. Y. Q—What would account for an empty, gaunt feeling in the chest about an hour or so after meals? A glass of milk will relieve the trouble, but in a short time it has returned again.

A—Indigestion and acidity would cause the symptoms you describe. Watch your diet and keep the bowels open. Avoid too many sweets and rich foods. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Art and Science.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Art has been studied from many different points of view. But it is only within comparatively recent years that mathematicians, physicists and scientists in general are beginning to recognize the esthetic elements in science and to take account of them. Moreover, scientists, and in particular mathematicians, are beginning to perceive that art has a scientific basis, and that it may be possible, certainly for simple art forms, to express the esthetic qualities of an art work in mathematical form.

The subject of coordinate geometry, invented by the French philosopher, Descartes, has enabled mathematicians to study in a satisfactory way many of the most beautiful linear and superficial forms which are capable of construction, curves and surfaces of every conceivable variety. It is one thing, however, to set up the equations which enable us to trace these beautiful forms. It is a wholly different thing, and one filled with many elements of uncertainty, to formulate into equations the esthetic principles which constitute, so to speak, the esthetic measure of the art object.

Imagine that you have placed before you a set of regular polygons in a plane: triangle, square pentagon, hexagon, heptagon, octagon, and so on, indefinitely. Or consider the myriad shapes of delicate symmetry and exquisite beauty presented by the snowflake, as seen under the microscope. How shall we take account of our esthetic impressions, which perhaps increase with the complexity of the object, and formulate them into esthetic laws?

It is now generally recognized that Poe was making a serious contribution to criticism when he wrote his famous essays, "The Rationale of Verse," and "The Philosophy of Composition." Hhe wrote his poems in accordance with certain esthetic laws, which appear to have their basis in mathematical principles: order, repetition, symmetry, equality. Poe asks us to examine a crystal. We are at once interested, he says, in the equality between the sides and the angles of one of its faces. Equality of sides pleases us; equality of angles doubles the pleasure. By presenting to view a second face, in every respect like the first, our pleasure is doubled; by presenting a third face, our pleasure is trebled, and so on. In fact, Poe concludes that the pleasure experienced, if it could be measured, would be susceptible of exact mathematical relations—at least, up to a certain point; and beyond that there would be a diminution in the relations considered.

A remarkable study, based on similar ideas, has been carried out by the brilliant mathematical physicist of Harvard, Professor George Birhoff. He has made extended studies of certain mathematical figures designed according to certain established principles, and in particular of the structural outlines of vases. In lectures and in published papers, he has sought to formulate certain mathematical principles underlying and conditioning some of the simpler art forms. Unity in variety is one of his guiding principles; and he agrees with the definition of the beautiful set forth by Hemsterhuis in the eighteenth century; beauty presents the maximum of ideas in the minimum of time.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 17—It is always interesting to stroll down to that section of the capital known as "Foggy Bottom"—about a half-mile southwest of the White House—and roam through the corridors of the navy department.

Tourists find it a delightful place. Those who love the sea and ships have come to regard this place as a Mecca.

For, in those almost endless corridors there are many models of ships in glass cases, and numerous paintings on the walls depicting great moments in the naval history of this country.

It cost Uncle Sam a lot of money to assemble this miniature fleet. And these models are fine bits of craftsmanship—perfect in every detail.

It is not an uncommon sight to see old sea dogs—some now in the navy, others long retired—standing before one of these glass cases in a reminiscent mood.

For in many instances these models are visual reminders of those old ships on which they first put to sea—ships that made American history.

There is one, for example—the Oregon—before which one of these old tars may be frequently seen. He is that hale and hearty chap, Captain C. S. Kempff, formerly naval hydrographer, but back in the days of '98 a junior officer aboard the Oregon.

It was the Oregon which made the gallant and spectacular 17,000-mile dash from San Fransisco to the naval front at Santiago and fried the first shot at the Spanish fleet which was attempting to escape to sea.

Captain Kempff commanded the after guns on the Oregon at that time. And the late Admiral Eberle, who died shortly after his retirement as chief of naval operations, commanded the forward turret.

And well does the captain remember the day when that doughty old battleship opened the battle with her thirteen-inch guns.

He admits that he has heard and told this thirty-year old story of the Oregon many times, but that it will never grow stale. Nor does he ever fail to get a kick when he passes the model in the corridor of the navy department.

Captain Kempff is back at sea now, aboard the U. S. S. Trenton with the Atlantic fleet.

Incidentally, the navy building itself—a semi-permanent steel and concrete structure—was put up in exactly three months' time during the war.

Navy folks laugh up their sleeve when this low-lying, long building is designated as "semi-permanent." It was supposed to last twenty years when put up more than a decade ago, but it begins to look as if the "semi-permanent" means a long, long time.

Energetic Wagner citizens go about it the right way, establishing a 40-acre airport, well marked, with good hangars, flood lights, etc.

The Nebraska Bankers' association offers $3,000 reward for every bank bandit killed during a bank holdup, or in pursuit following a holdup. Similar rewards have been offered elsewhere, but there is some question as to their legality.

Offering rewards for killing men that cannot, after death, prove they were not bank bandits, is delicate business. However, 16 Nebraska banks have been robbed in 16 months, and something must be done.

TODAY'S "usual gangster murder" deals with a gentleman called "Mushy" Friedman, in New Jersey. Two enemy gangsters chased the unfortunate Morris or ("Mushy") Friedman several blocks as greyhounds chase a hare and left him riddled with bullets and slugs.

IN SPARTA, MICH., a farmer may take a bushed of wheat to the barber shop and get a good, artistic hair cut, and 27 cents in cash for the bushel. That is only a partial solution of the farm problem. A farmer with a thousand bushels of wheat can't have his hair cut a thousand times.

IF ANYBODY asks "How long will the depresison last?" reply, "How long does a cold in the head last?" It depends on who has the cold, how much of a cold it is, and what you do after you get it.

This country is rich and powerful enough to throw off this chill of depression, and anyhow it is comforting to know that even a heavy cold does disappear.

BEARS "That destroy public confidence" by selling short in Wall street, have been told in firm language to "lay off," and have lain off. The stock exchange wants no quarrel with the department of justice, no investigation of sacred Wall street accounts.

The old statement that bears and short selling are necessary to make business good and active seems borne out by today's market, dull, with prices drifting down.

suffered bruises and slight cuts as police used nightsticks and blackjacks to disperse the yelling, fighting mob.

Fighting in the city hall was precipitated when Sam Nessin, a Communist shouted:

"You are a lot of grafting Tammany politicians. I would rather be a member of my working class than one of your grafting officials. You are a grafting Tammany politician and a crook."

Mayor Walker rose from his seat and replied, "That little remark prompts me to come down and thrash the life out of you."

Members of the audience and police surrounded Nessin and his companions and rushed them out of the room and down the stairs pummeling them the meanwhile.

Fred Haberman To Tell Elks of World Tour

Plans were made for the initiation of a class of candidates in one week at the meeting of Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. E., last night in the Elks temple. TREATY DEATH CALLED ONLY GERMAN HOPE

SESSION IS TUMULTOUS

Government Heads Howled at in Debate of Bruening Finance Program.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 17—A spokesman for the Fascist party, reading a carefully prepared manuscript to the Reichstag today, emphasized his party's belief that Germany's salvation lies in abrogation of the treaty of Versailles, which he said was "immoral and hence void."

His pronouncement followed hours of bedlam during which it was necessary for government and other speakers to bellow their words, few of which reached their listeners. Socialists, angered, threatened to throw the Fascists out of the plenary hall, and were dared to come ahead by the threatened deputies.

Not Afraid of War

Gregor Strasser, Fascist spokesman, declared that the Fascists were not seeking to embroil their nation in war, but "won't shrink from it if it should become the last means of restoring German independence and social freedom."

The Fascist also said his party wanted universal military training and compulsory work by every citizen. Regarding anti-Semitism he added:

"We do not want persecution of the Jews but we do demand elimination of Jews from German life. We want leadership without Jewish spirit, without Jewish go-between and without Jewish press influence."

The conclusion of Strasser's speech was the signal for a vociferous outburst from the national Socialists which lasted for several minutes.

Stormy Session

Members of the government were howled at, jeered and abused during debate today on Chancellor Bruening's financial reform measures. Unrelentingly however, they bellowed their way through what was intended as calm discussion of the reich's economic future.

President Loebe tried vigorously to restore order, ringing his bell, and calling the hecklers by name, warning them that they would be suspended.

"Throw them out," the Socialists called at the right benches.

Merchants To Discuss Main Street Dedication

Main street merchants will meet tonight at the Kleinmaier store on South Main street to complete plans and appoint committees for the dedication and reopening of Main street. The street is now being resurfaced from George street to Columbia street, and will be enhanced with "white way" street lights.

The date of completion has been set at Nov. 15 and the dedication will follow a few days later.

A final choice has not yet been made by the President, it is said. Davis is not scheduled to retire until about December 1 and his successor may not be officially announced until then.

Report Credits Rebels with Capture of City

By The Associated Press

PORTO ALEGRE, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 17—An official revolutionary communique today said that northern insurgent forces under Capt. Juarez Tavora had captured Aracaju, capital of the state of Sergipe.

Crossing the Rio Sao Francisco from the state of Alagoas, Captain Juarez and an army containing thousands of unpaid volunteers, spread through the state of Sergipe and effected capitulation of its principal city almost without contest.

In many cases the populace met the army with food, cigarets and flowers.

Claims Democrats Will Win Control of House

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—The flat prediction that the Democrats will control the next House of Representatives and come very close to winning the Senate, was made today by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee. He based it upon reports from field agent and surveys covering a score of states.

"The election on November 4 may develop into a landslide of unexpected proportions," Shouse declared.

Roads in Good Order for Football Traffic

With the Ohio State-Michigan game the principal attraction, Marion football fans who plan to see college games Saturday will find state highways in good condition, according to the weekly detour bulletin received today by Mrs. Della V. Gallegher, secretary of the Marion Auto club, from the state highway department.

Route 23 from Marion to Columbus is open all the way and officials along the way have been instructed to keep traffic moving as smoothly as possible, Mrs. Gallagher was told by state automobile association officials.

Carnegie Tech plays Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., Saturday in another outstanding game. The best itinerary to follow is route 30 to Plymouth, Ind., and route 31 north of Plymouth to South Bend.

A Buckeye conference game is scheduled for Cincinnati Saturday, Ohio Wesleyan meeting the University of Cincinnati. Route 23 to Delaware and route 42 from Delaware to Cincinnati is the closest and best road and is void of detours.

Oberlin and Mt. Union play at Alliance and Akron meets Wooster in Ohio conference games Saturday. Wooster may be reached by following route 4 to Bucyrus, route 5 to Mansfield and route 30 on to the college town, while the same itinerary may be followed by Alliance-bound traffic. At Canton, however, route 19 should be taken to Alliance.

Ohio university team, unbeaten since 1928, will play Western Reserve at Cleveland Saturday. Route 4 to route 20, and the latter route to Cleveland is the best itinerary.

Two games tonight of interest are on tap, one at Springfield between Heidelberg and Wittenberg and the other at Dayton between Oglethorpe and the University of Dayton. Route 4 to Marysville, route 55 from south of Marysville to Urbana and route 33 from Urbana to Springfield is the best route. From Springfield route 4 may be taken to Dayton.

CHURCH PAPER HITS BULKLEY

Ohio Christian News Declares for McCulloch in Editorial Today.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 17—The Ohio Christian News, publication of the Ohio Council of Churches, in an editorial in today's issue came out against Robert Bulkley, Cleveland, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate.

Bulkley, by choosing the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as the issue in his campaign, "is now challenging the churches to stick by their guns on this great moral issue," the editorial said, adding that "The Ohio Christian News for one accepts his challenge."

The editorial defends the use of the pulpit in campaigning against Bulkley, saying:

"He (Bulkley) protests loudly against opposition from church sources. He charges churches with lending their pulpits to the preaching of political sermons." But he must have forseen such opposition.

"The underlying purpose of all this outcry seems to be to frighten off and silence some of the church opposition."

This indorsement of Bulkley's opponent, Roscoe McCulloch, is the only editorial indorsement of any candidate that has been carried in The Christian News. Front page stories, however, emphasizing that Governor Cooper favors prohibition, have been carried in two issues.

2 PARTY MEETINGS IN COUNTY TONIGHT

Republicans To Hold Rally in Caledonia; Democratic Women Meet.

Two meetings will be held tonight by Marion county political organizations as part of their campaigns prior to the Nov. 4 election.

The Republican executive committee is sponsoring a rally at Caledonia at which Lieutenant Governor John T. Brown and Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr. will speak, with the Marion Women's Glee club furnishing music. Wayne Dilts of Caledonia and R. E. Prettyman, executive committee chairman, will act as co-chairmen.

Democratic women of the county will meet in Democratic headquarters over the Marion National bank to make plans for a county campaign. Mrs. J. B. Hongland is president of the Marion Women's Democratic club which is sponsoring the meeting and which will be addressed by Miss Libbie Griffiths of Kenton. The meeting will start at 7:30 p. m.

The Republican rally at Caledonia will be the second of its kind in the county. A third will be held in the Star auditorium on next Tuesday night with Ralph Cole of Findlay as the speaker, while a fourth is booked for Martel next Friday night with D. C. Rybolt, state purchasing agent, as the principal speaker. Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr. also will talk.

The Star Has Namesake in Cleveland School

THE Harding Star of Cleveland, namesake of the Marion Star, and published by the Harding Junior High school, named for President Harding, made its initial appearance for the school year, today.

The six-page monthly edition is unusual in that it carries no advertising. It is supported entirely by subscriptions and about 70% of the 920 pupils are subscribers.

Twenty-nine pupils, representing each homeroom in the school are its staff and Paul Minatik is the editor. The printing classes of the school publish the paper.

Ford Says Protection "Is Only Excuse for Incompetency" in Talk.

By The Associated Press

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 17—Henry Ford, American automobile magnate, in an interview before he sailed for America today on the Europa, declared: "Protection is nothing more nor less than an excuse for incompetency. The need for protection is created by people who do not want to work."

He reiterated previous statements that "the world generally is in a healthier state after its spree. Everybody has lost money but it may be to their advantage for it will make them think."

Mr. Ford said that Soviet Russia would not be of much use to the world until more Britons went there to show the country how to do things.

In Oklahoma the temperature had tumbled from 78 degrees at 8 a. m. yesterday to 44 at midnight with the drop continuing. A cold northerly wind was sweeping across Texas chilling the state which enjoyed temperatures well over 80 yesterday.

About 60 chickens which were stolen from Hardin county farmers were recovered by deputy sheriffs when the two men were arrested. They confessed the robberies, authorities said.

She Hears Voices in Bones—That she can see history in pins and hear voices in bones, is the claim of Frau Lotte Plaat, the eminent German psychometrist. Frau Plaat says that four years ago eerie capabilities revealed themselves in her. As she cannot explain these powers, scientists in Germany and Holland have been helping her to probe their mysteries. The psychometrist has only to take hold of an object and the story of its possessor or former environment is said to be revealed to her. She says that she has helped the German police to detect murderers by holding objects which belonged to the wanted men. In the same way she has found lost dogs and valuable old pictures, and she has made historical researches from mere bones.

Lunatics have habits that are the most fixed.

MOUNTAIN RETREAT OF "LEGS" DIAMOND

This is Jack "Legs" Diamond's fortress in the Catskills, N. Y., equipped with flood lights to warn "czar" of approaching enemies. Herein he is supposed to have planned recent invasion of new "Beer" territory. The result has left a trail of gang slayings in its wake, with Diamond (inset) the would-be king of New York's underworld, wounded, gasping for breath on a cot in the Polyclinic Hospital, New York City.

Gillette and Auto Strop Unite as Climax to Long Negotiations.

By United Press

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 17—The legal battle over patent rights between the Gillette Safety Razor Co., and the Auto Strop Safety Co., Inc., has ended with a merger of the rival companies.

Gillette's acquisition of Auto Strop climaxed negotiations extending over several months. The combine not only will end protracted patent litigation but will give Gillette important additional facilities in foreign fields.

Several months ago the Auto Strop Co., brought action against Gillette charging that the new Gillette blade represented an infringement of the patent owned by Auto Strop on the Probak blade and holder.

"Balance"
the most important thing about your recipe — the most important thing about your flour

Every day more women discover that Pillsbury's Best has some quality not found in other flour. They don't know what it is, but they know it's there. Because everything they bake—bread, biscuits or pastry—turns out better. Because everything has a delicate, unmistakably richer flavor.

Pillsbury's Best is different. It is scientifically "balanced" for successful baking. "Balanced" according to a wheat combination used only by Pillsbury. There is no other flour just like it. Pillsbury's Best is made from no single variety of wheat—for no single type of wheat contains just the right amount of protein, mineral, etc., to work perfectly for all baking. Pillsbury's Best is made from a special blend of different types of finest wheat. Each of these different wheats has some quality necessary to the perfectly "balanced flour.

You know your recipes must be properly balanced—that you must use just the right amount of each ingredient. It's just as important to use a perfectly "balanced" flour. Try Pillsbury's Best. You'll discover how good baking can become really perfect baking. If you bake bread, you'll get better bread. When you bake biscuits or pastry, you'll find a striking improvement in appearance and flavor. There's a real difference—ask for the "balanced" flour—Pillsbury's Best. Your grocer has it.

CHAPTER 12

Hallie Learns Her Name

Hallie caught the 12 o'clock [illegible] with nearly an hour to spare.

"You're tired, my dear," said Mrs. Bartholomew as Hallie returned, and there was as unusual tenderness in her voice.

"He wasn't in, Bardy. I got up early and went all that way for nothing." Hallie tried to laugh.

"Your business is very urgent?" asked Mrs. Bartholomew. She was about the table for a meal. "I don't mean to pry but—I wondered after you'd gone whether I could perhaps have helped you as well as this Mr. Perle. Your aunt and I were fairly close friends, you see—once."

"Aunt Harrietta told me," said Hallie, "that if I ever wanted to know my true name and who my father was I was to ask Mr. Perle. Well, now the time has come when I do want to know my name. Nothing else. But my name has suddenly come to matter to me most enormously. Can you tell me what it is?"

"Yes," Mrs. Bartholomew answered slowly, "Yes, as it happens I can tell you your name, It's Consuelo Rose Conaldine."

"I echoed Hallie, in a whisper. "Are you sure it's Rose?"

"Yes, I'm quite sure. You like it?" asked Mrs. Bartholomew.

"It's just what I wanted to be called," said Hallie. And her hand went up to where the ivory rose lay between her breasts. What had Shamrock said of it? That it was given by a man to a woman on the night woman—it brought [illegible]

"I want to talk to you, Bardy. I want to tell you about a great change in my life. I'm not a nurse any longer."

"Is that why you want to take your own name?" the landlady asked shrewdly.

"There is something I want to confess to you," Hallie said.

"Well?"

"I came down here because the man I was going to marry lives here. I wanted to be near him."

Hallie gazed at the gaunt woman now seated opposite to her. Mrs. Bartholomew was not an educated woman. Yet Aunt Harrietta had always treated her with consideration and respect; had explained her as "a old friend" and she had apparently confided to her the whole true story of Hallie.

"I saw you some time ago," went on Mrs. Bartholomew abruptly, "walking with that Mr. Broon. Is he the young man you're going to marry?"

"He asked me to marry him. First, I accepted. But—I have changed my mind."

"You have a poor appetite, my dear," she said, when Hallie refused a second portion of an excellent savory. The girl looked up apologetically. In that moment—the first moment in which she had ever really dispassionately studied that rugged face framed in tossed white hair—Hallie thought she recognized a likeness to—no, it was gone.

"Wait a moment!" commanded the landlady. She rose from the table and presently returned with a dusty bottle of champagne.

"I've kept this in the cellar for more years than I want to count," she said. With a surprising strength of wrist she uncorked the bottle.

"I'd like to drink to your happiness, Miss Rose Conaldine, if you'll allow me. Somehow I think you'll find it, too."

"It's your affair whether you'd like to hear anything more about who you are and where you come from," Mrs. Bartholomew continued gruffly. "But one thing you're bound to find out before long and that is that Conaldine ain't—isn't a name to be proud of."

"Aunt Harrieta told me it was notorious."

"She did, did she?" Mrs Bartholomew stared down at the golden bubbles. "So it was, in her earlier days; but now—people forget a heap of things that seemed nine days' wonders at the time. They'll tell you one thing about Clem Conaldine, though, if I don't."

"What is that?"

"He was 'wanted' for murder."

There was a pause.

"Was he caught?"

"No, never."

Again there was a pause.

"Do you think he is dead, Bardy?" whispered Hallie.

"Looks like it," she said.

"And—what about my mother?"

"What d'you want to know about her, my dear?"

"Well—everything. All I have ever been told is that she was Aunt Harrietta's sister."

"Did your aunt tell you that?"

"Yes."

"I can't say much else, then." She paused. "Except that she was a lady, all right," she added.

Hallie flushed.

"Does that mean my father wasn't—respectable?"

"His family was." Mrs Bartholomew's voice was harsh. "Only he'd no education. And he was weak . . But I'll give yo u the whole tale if you want it."

"No," said Hallie. "I don't want it—yet. But will you go on being my friend and let me be yours?"

"I don't know as I need friends exactly. But that's not to say that I'm not your friend, my dear. And I think you're going to ask me to do something for you now."

"Yes. The first is to let me move my belonginge from the nurses' home where I have been living and store them in your attic. The second is—I want you to forget, unless you're talking to Dr. Lytton, that 'Miss Eildsmore' ever came here. Your one and only lodger is Miss Conaldine."

To Be Continued.

Ohio Boy is Strongest

"MY son, Lawrence, suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was quite listless and weak," says Mrs. L. H. Fieth, 1118 East 88th St., Cleveland.

"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for his condition. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Since then I have used California Fig Syrup myself with benefit as a laxative."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW is the big day. I told Jubilee when we woke up that tomorrow will be Saturday, and that we know where there are some skunks and we will have a rifle and maybe an auto, and business is going to begin to pick up. I got out of bed and got his rope out from under the board where I keep it, and I told him to swing onto it and get let down, because I have got to clean the stable so I can get an early start tomorrow. If I was to have waited till tomorrow and then had to wait till I cleaned the stable before I went anywhere the bunch might go without me, and then where would I be. The skunks would be supprized if I wasn't there after they had seen me with the bunch so much.

When I got out to the stable and opened the door to go in both of the cows came busting out. Someone had got in and untied them and they didn't have sense enough to know they had to get milked before they could go to the pasture. I had to get their ropes and go after them and head them off and tie them to a fence whilst I milked them, and when I got home breakfast had been finished and I had to take what was left. The bunch was in the barn when I got done and went out, and we had to hustle to get to the pasture and back by the time school called, so I had to leave the stable cleaning till tonight. They all looked so innocent that I couldn't tell which had let the cows loose, but the Lost Bag of Tripe was the sorriest for me, so it must have been him.

The teacher told us tomorrow was Saturday and she hoped we would not any of us go in swimming any more this year. She said she would hate to lose any of us, because our fathers had spent a heap of money getting us this far, and some of us wasn't worth what it had cost, but we might be if we lived and got educated.

At recess the Lost Bag of Tripe said she was looking right at me when she said some of us wasn't worth it, and I thought it was him that had let my cows [illegible] I threw it down and got hold of his shirt and when he tried to pull away it came up over his head and the girls went around to the other side of the school and we tied it in a knot over his head so he couldn't get it down, and when the bell rang we pushed him up the steps, and the teacher pulled him out of line, and then she followed us in and told us we might all stay after school.

The Lost Bag of Tripe marched out grinning, and I was thinking how I would paint him but when I got home with my cows he had my stable all cleaned out for me. So he got off that time. He is certainly lucky.

Lovely hair!

Modern hair dressers add beauty to your hair by graceful lines and contours. It is just as important to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant, rich in color.

Millions of girls and women are doing this at home with the easy help of Danderine. It is so simple to use. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair.

Instantly Danderine brings out the natural color of dingy, lifeless hair; makes it more sparkling and luxurious than brilliantine; makes it easy to manage; holds it in place.

The consistent use of Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff, stops falling hair; tends to make hair grow long, silky and [illegible]

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

A Few Moments With Mr. Cameron Convinces Madge.

I COULD not blame Mary for her patent enjoyment of her dance with Colin Cameron. This was my first thought as the young talkie star led me through the waltz which the musicians were sounding. The man was, I conceded, the best dancer with whom I ever had "trod a measure," although I loyally and truthfully told myself that I much preferred dancing with Dicky, whose steps exactly suit mine. But that knowledge did not prevent me from enjoying to the utmost the dance through which young Mr. Cameron was effortlessly guiding me.

"May I tell you that you dance beautifully, Mrs. Graham?" he said when we had half-circled the room.

"Thank you," I returned demurely, "but that is not the reason you asked me to dance. You want to ask me something, do you not?"

His poise forsook him for the fraction of a second. He halted on a turn, and holding me off, looked down at me with plainly startled eyes.

"How did you—" he began, then swung me into step again, with a little forced smile on his lips.

"How did I know?" I answered lightly. "Ah! that I must not tell you if you cannot guess."

"But I can." He was himself again. "You were talking with Miss Mary. She told you of the offer I made her, did she not?"

There was a smugness in his tone which made me long to slap him. It was evident that he felt like a king extending a scepter.

"Yes, she did." I had difficulty in getting even that laconic answer out without betraying my irritation.

"Of course, you approve," he said confidently. "Miss Mary said she would have to talk things over with you and her uncle before she accepted. I own I was a bit surprised, for chances like this almost never come to a girl without stage experience. But, of course I understand Mr. Veritzen has been overseeing her studies, a rare chance—for he never bothers with anyone he does not mean to train for himself, and of course there is no question of that in this case."

There was an unconscious interrogative inflection in his voice, and I was conscious that he was furtively scrutinizing me. All at once I was certain of what had been only a conjecture. This sleek youth was in Philip Veritzen's confidence. He knew that Mary had been a potential Veritzen star, he knew of her betrothal to Noel, of the bitter opposition of Noel's father, and of the older man's determination to break up the betrothal by any means in his power, fair or otherwise.

That he was also doing Philip Veritzen's bidding in this offer to Mary of a dancing role in his new talkie, I was also certain. If I had needed confirmation, I received it when a quick glance across the floor, showed me Philip Veritzen standing alone against a pillar and eyeing us intently.

"I am sorry, but I do not approve," I told the young man with a manner that I am afraid Mary and her mates would have described as "snooty."

His eyes widened with astonishment.

"You do not approve," he repeated. "But surely, you do not understand. What reasons—"

"I am sorry," I said perfunctorily, again, "but I cannot give you my reasons at this time. But they do not necessarily mean that our niece will refuse your offer. Her uncle is her guardian and will have the last word. He will let you know."

"But I am afraid you do not understand." He was distinctly "snooty" himself now. "This offer of mine cannot wait. The casting director is holding this part for Miss Mary as it is. Almost all the others have been filled."

Cameron Betrays His Motive

"How can he be holding it, when you only saw our niece dance tonight for the first time?" I asked with apparent innocence, and suppressed a smile at seeing the betraying start he gave. He had been so obsessed with the idea of doing Philip Veritzen's bidding that he had forgotten to be consistent.

"I—I," he began as might a stammering schoolboy, then collected his wandering wits with an admirable effort, and smilled down at me.

"Your niece is so very, very charming," he said, "that it is not strange I used her name without authority. I should have said that the casting director is holding this part for my approval, because other applicants have not suited me. The role is not the leading feminine one, but the dance with me is quite a long one, and I must have a certain type of girl, and an exceptional dancer. Miss Mary fills both requirements, therefore I am anxious to secure her. But as I said before, I cannot wait. The part must be filled."

"If you cannot wait until day after tomorrow, I am afraid you will have to fill it with someone else," I answered, firmly, "because we cannot give you our decision until then. It is not a matter to be decided lightly, and everybody will sleep most of the day tomorrow."

I made a mental reservation on my own account, for I had plans which would bring me out of bed before daylight. But Mr. Cameron took me at my word, and yielded with more reluctance than grace.

"I will try to persuade the casting director to wait until then," he said, but I caught the involuntary glance he sent toward Philip Veritzen, and understood who the "casting director" really was.

If the public favors the practice of having no reserved seats, it will be continued throughout the year's course

The student and faculty committee in charge of selecting the program last year endeavored to choose numbers that will give variety, balance and entertainment to its patrons this year. Carl Sandburg, American poet, is the outstanding number on the course.

"The Cotter's Saturday Night," the opening number, is a play written around Robert Burns' immortal poem by that name. The play was written by John E. Daniels of Boston, and will be presented by the Scottish Musical Co. of Boston.

Tuesday night, Nov. 18, five Hopi Indians and Edith Sterling Billingsley will be presented. Miss Billingsley, who is in charge of the company has written a Hopi playlet and coached the Indians in presenting it in true Indian form, not following the white man's stage technique. An industrial exhibit of the tribe will be brought to Marion. The Indians weave their blankets upon hand looms, exhibit their basket work, bead work, silversmith work, pottery and other arts peculiar to the Indian, before the patron's eyes.

Jessie Rae Taylor, impersonator, and only woman number of the Wig and Grease Paint club of America, is on the program for Friday night, Dec. 5. After seeing Miss Taylor's program, Mrs. George Arliss wrote to her: "My husband and I enjoyed your sketches so much. He was astounded at your work."

Headed by Lloyd King, the King Male quartet will be in Marion Jan. 13 for a program. Instrumental novelties and costume sketches are a part of the program.

Captain Dennis Rooke, solo flyer on the 7,000 miles England-to-India flight in a Moth plane, will speak Feb. 4. His lecture will recount the story of the thrills of his historic flight. His personal meetings with Colonel Lindergh in Paris, with Kaiser Wilhelm at Godesberg on Rhine and with the Prince of Wales in London, will be told, according to advance notices on his appearance here.

Carl Sandburg, one of America's outstanding poets, biographer, journalist, author of children's books and singer of American folk songs is the crowning number on the course. He will be here Feb 23, the closing number of the year. At present he is engaged in writing a three-volume opus, "Abraham Lincoln: the War Years." "Potato Face" his 1930 book, has been pronounced a masterpiece of nonsense, fantasy and philosophy. A selection of his "Rootabaga Stories" is now in five school readers

The Man Who STOOD STILL

Did you ever stop to think that the lack of a modern home appliance—like a washing machine—keeps many a man from getting ahead in the world?

Take your wife—for example. When you two started out you were going to set the world on fire. She was to be a real help-mate and you were going to discuss your problems together and be guided by her advice and help.

But—as time went on—and the children came—and the hundred and one things to do around the home claimed her attention—you perhaps drifted away from that ideal thought of companionship that was going to carry you right to the top.

She—with her numerous duties—has had no time to discuss your problems. Washday—perhaps with the old-fashioned equipment—has left her too tired to be interested in things you ought to discuss together.

Naturally, the fault is not hers. Perhaps she has mentioned to you a number of times, that a modern washing machine would relieve her of a lot of drudgery—but you couldn't just see your way clear to get one right now. A little later—perhaps.

A modern appliance, like a washing machine, is a necessity in every home. If you were the owner of a factory you would be interested in an appliance that saved hours of labor—but in your own home you overlook this vital factor—more vital for you than you perhaps imagine.

Make this experiment—get her one of the modern washing machines offered for sale by Standard Home Utilities—and notice the difference the very first wash-day. Gone will be her usual tired feeling—brighter, more cheerful and ready to again discuss your problems—to help you with advice and to cheer you on in your struggle to success.

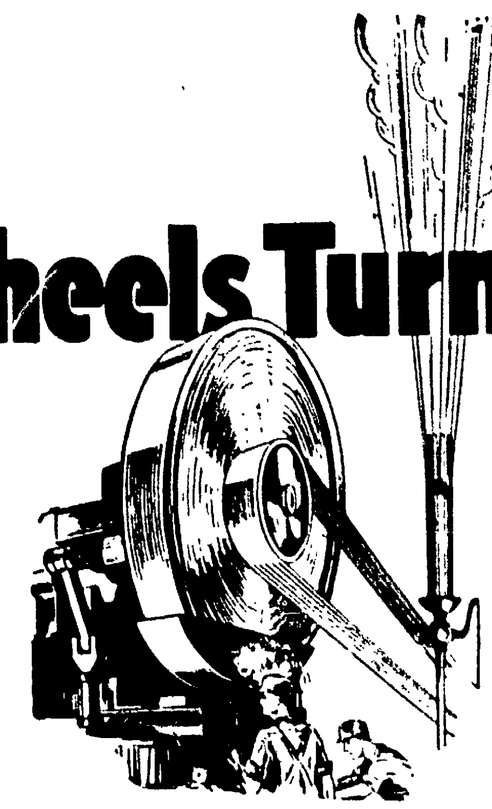
Buy Something From Somebody

Come On, Let's Start The Wheels Turning

Buying Will Put Men Back To Work!

We believe we have the solution of the present economic depression. People everywhere have been urged to buy, but either fear of releasing the money they have or lack of employment has been too great a restraining influence.

Billions of dollars that should be in circulation are being piled up in one way or another. In spite of the apparent unemployment, 75% of the people of Marion are working every day and earning money. Collectively, the payrolls of the city represent a fabulous sum, and what is true of Marion is true of the entire nation. What is required then, is that the public make a start somewhere in their buying. The minute a tone store, or one industry, or one city, gets busy, factories will resume operations and re-employ their people.



CREDIT

Buy what you need and give no thought to the money. We will finance you so that this great campaign will go over.

If you have no account here, open one tomorrow. All merchandise here is available on credit.

BUY NOW WHILE PRICES ARE LOW!

Are you wise? If you are and you need furniture, you will buy now. Prices are lower now than they have been in 10 years. We expect prices to advance any day so we earnestly urge you to buy now. You will do two things, you will help to bring back better times and you will save much—and we say again BUY NOW AND SAVE.

About furniture store salesmen—

When people are buying furniture they (1) do not want to be hurried by a salesman; (2) they want to have the construction, the style, the finish, the utility value of the merchandise they are interested in THOROUGHLY explained to them; (3) they expect courtesy, politeness, interest in THEIR wants, they want full attention; (4) they want an even-tempered man to wait on them; (5) they do not want a man who insists on arguing or who uses "high-pressure" methods in an effort to induce them to buy something they do not wish to buy. And so on

Here, in Schaffner's our salesmen are trained to make your buying just as pleasant as possible. Our customers appreciate it—and so will you.

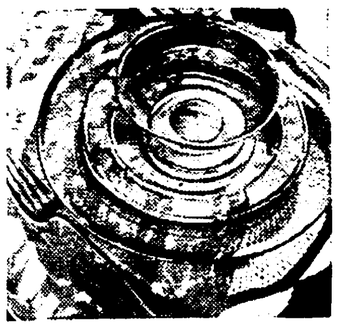
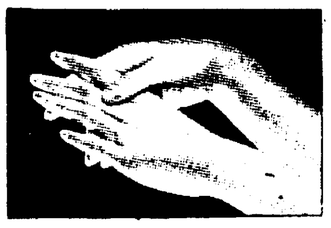
NEW THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Table Linen Demands Hand Washing



Caressing White Hands Every Woman's Right



Wash Linens This New Way—Keep Hands Satin-Soft

SPOTLESS table linens—soft as only hand washing can make them—are as much a mark of social knowledge as good manners.

To have them—impeccable and flawless—and, at the same time for the housewife to have caressing, white hands is a problem that has now been solved an interesting new way.

Use any kind of soap, soap powder or soap flakes, in washing linens. But add a teaspoon of CLIMALENE to the water. This enables you to use ONE-FOURTH the usual quantity of soap. For it softens the water instantly, so that far less soap is needed. Thus avoiding any danger of "soap eat" or fading, so fatal to fine fabrics.

Then by bland cleansing elements IN ITSELF, CLIMALENE acts to gently DISSOLVE any food stains, grease or dirt in things being washed. Thus they emerge soft, spotless, utterly without fading.

Containing superlative SKIN WHITENING and SKIN SOFTENING ingredients—used by scores of beauty specialists—it leaves the hands soft and lovely beyond words.

Women are flocking to it. It costs only a dime at grocers. Try it. Just ask for CLIMALENE.

CLIMALENE

An Extra Slice at a Meal

At the new low bread prices we can eat up the wheat..

WHEN the price of wheat fell so far that everyone saw a new level had been established, A&P cut the price of its standard large size loaf. It's the policy of A&P to give its customers the savings on raw material.

There is another good reason for this reduction. American farmers are suffering from a glut of wheat. There's more than enough to go 'round -- a bushel apiece for everyone in this country over last year's supply.

Congress has tried to help. President Hoover put the Farm Board to work. But the farmers are still overloaded with wheat. An extra slice a meal for each of us would do the trick -- and at A&P prices it wont cost much.

The best way to get rid of our surplus stock is to encourage the people to eat it up.

BOWMAN TELLS CLUB OF THREE-MILL LEVY

School Superintendent Addresses Kiwanians on Tax Proposal.

Forty per cent of the current expense budget of Marion schools is at stake in the three mill school levy, which will go before the voters for renewal in the November election, Supt. G. A. Bowman told Marion Kiwanians at the Marion club yesterday.

That the levy must be continued if the school program, claimed to be a minimum program, is carried out this year and in future years was pointed out by Superintendent Bowman.

The levy has been in effect during the last 10 years. This year the school board is asking renewal of the levy for another five years.

The current operating budget of the schools is $380,000 a year, Superintendent Bowman said. Of this amount, $150,000 is furnished by the three mill levy. What the failure of this levy would mean is apparent, Superintendent Bowman declared.

After outlining the school situation, the number of schools and pupils in the city, and a brief history of the system, Superintendent Bowman revealed the schools could not operate for more than seven months a year if the levy is defeated.

The levy, he said, represents the only means to obtain more tax money for operating expenses than the amount allowed within the 15 mill limitation. He also added that 80 of the 92 school districts in Ohio are deriving a part of their operating expenses from levies outside the 15 mill limitation.

Talkies Taxed For Players—Patrons of motion picture theaters which have replaced orchestras by talkies must pay a tax of 50 per cent on the price of tickets, according to a new ordinance passed by the Municipal Council of Porte Alegre, Brazil. The proceeds of this tax are to be devoted to the relief of musicians who lost their positions when the talkies appeared.

Cooking School Note

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the Star in the Marion Star Auditorium, Mrs. Emily M Lautz stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern shortening.

Fruit trees 250 years old—and a recipe that grew up with them

THERE are fruit trees that old, right in the quaint little old village of Middletown, N. J., where the woman lives who sent me this excellent Crisco recipe for Dutch apple cake.

She told me, too, that the thrifty settlers used to mark their boundary lines with fruit trees, mostly apple, instead of fences. And the wives had to devise all manner of ways to use these apples so the husbands wouldn't turn them all into hard cider. This cake was one of their recipes.

I don't know how good the original apple cake was, but it couldn't have been any better than this modern version of it, made with the modern shortening—Crisco—whose delicate flavor allows every little piece of apple to assert itself in the finished deliciousness of the cake. This recipe is simple and quick like all Crisco recipes.

No matter what kind of food I'm cooking, if the recipe calls for a shortening or a fat, I use Crisco—for I sort of grew up on it. It's been in my mother's kitchen for 18 years. We've both always found it sweet and fresh-tasting just as it came from the can. Crisco stays good-tasting, too. And so do foods cooked with it.

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Crisco
2 egg yolks (save whites for sauce)
⅓ cup milk
4 apples
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Mix and sift together flour, baking powder, 2 tablespoons of the sugar and salt. Cut in Crisco and add egg yolks mixed with milk. Mix. Pour into shallow Crisco'ed cake pan and top with apples which have been cut into wedge-shaped slices. Sprinkle top with rest of sugar, and the cinnamon and lemon rind and dot with bits of Crisco. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) about 35 minutes or until apples are tender. Serve hot or cold with lemon sauce.

Fluffy Lemon Sauce

Mix one egg, ⅓ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Add water and cook in double boiler about 5 minutes or until thick, stirring constantly. Then mix in 1 tablespoon Crisco, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and lastly fold in 2 egg whites beaten stiff. This sauce may be served with almost any dessert similar to the Apple Cake.

Taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor will tell you why things made with Crisco taste so much better.

Marion Is Center

MARION remains the most populous county in a territory which embraces 200,000 people, it is shown by the 1930 census figures which show Marion county to be the population leader of a seven-county district of which it is the "hub" county.

The counties surrounding and touching Marion county are Crawford, Delaware, Hardin, Morrow, Union and Wyandot, none of which exceeds Marion county in population.

Marion leads with 45,429 people and Crawford is next with 35,313. The others rank as follows: Hardin, 27,634; Delaware, 25,992; Union, 19,183; Wyandot, 19,029, and Morrow, 14,467.

All of the 200,600 population is within an hour's ride of Marion, a fact significant to local merchants, for it offers them a "trade empire" that rapidly has increased with the advent of the automobile and the building of more and better roads.

Not only do local stores benefit from the fact that Marion is the center of this fifth of a million population, but local hotels, restaurants and theaters also are serving the district far better than 20 years ago when transportation facilities were not as available.

Black Now Popular

ALTHOUGH the color schemes of automobiles are constantly changed to meet public fancy, black is the present favorite, superseding blue, which has been popular since 1928, according to Mrs D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club.

The predominant position of blue has been changed but once since late in 1928, when brown took the lead early this year and retained it for a brief period of 60 days, Mrs. Gallagher says.

She bases her statement on a report received from one of the country's largest lacquer plants, which conducts a periodic study of the demand for various color schemes.

The company said that black was in fourth place a year ago. It listed the six present leaders as follows: black, blue, brown, green, maroon and grey. A year ago they were blue, brown, green, black, grey and maroon.

Children Lose Pet

YOU'VE read Tarkington's "Penrod" stories, and perhaps the one in which Penrod and his gang found the white horse and began feeding it to fatten for sale?

In the south end of town there was a lovely pony willed to the children by their grandfather, and stabled in a clean, roomy part of the garage. The family and children loved the animal and did everything possible to make its stay in the city pleasant.

The other Saturday afternoon, that was the only time it was given much exercise, the boys and girls raced the pony up and down the cinder alley, not realizing that they were overheating the gallant little horse, and to coax it to race some more, gave it apples, green grass, lump sugar and all the water its overheated system demanded.

Sunday the pony became ill, the veterinarian was called and visited the garage many times during the day and night, but in the wee small hours of Monday morning, the pony died.

Now there's only a bright shiny saddle and stirrups in the stall

For Saturday, Oct. 18

THIS day may prove to be memorable for the breaking away of a long crystallized state of affairs, making room for definite progress of an enduring and substantial nature. However, there may be many avenues of opposition and hostility subtle and sordid in nature, operating in personal as well as business relations. Some desirable succor may be forthcoming from elderly persons or solid institutions.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare a year in which a longstanding obstruction or congested state of affairs may be swept away, making room for firm and enduring progress and realization. But there are some subtle, probably sinister, menaces to be disposed of, these in the realm of business and purely personal associations, assistance and support may be sought from elderly persons or institutions

A child born on this day should be talented, industrious, practical and responsible, yet may have some peculiar leanings or experiences

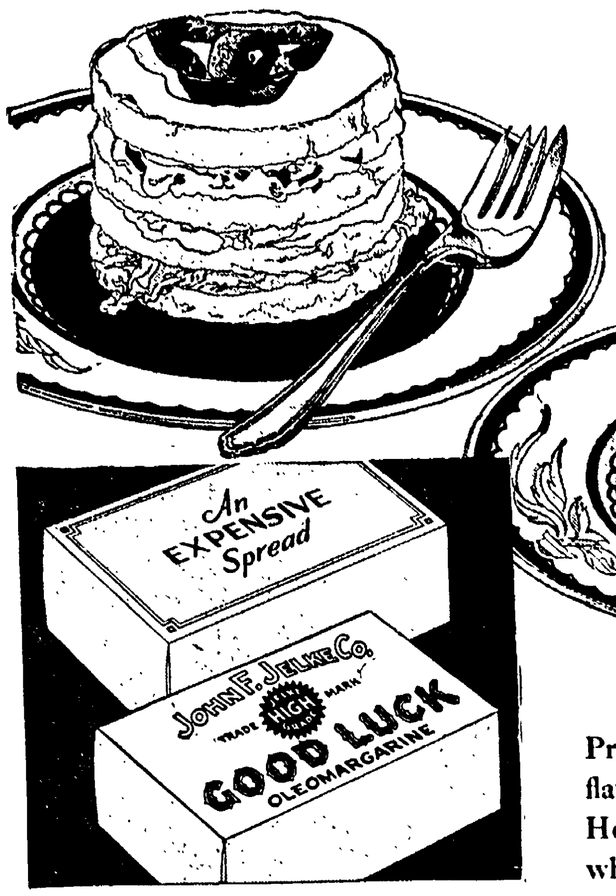
WHICH IS WHICH?



The popular new four-layer sandwich, perfectly duplicated in flavor, though one is made with GOOD LUCK, the other with a spread costing twice as much.

Prepare them yourself and ask the best flavor judge you know to test his taste. He will not be able to tell which is which. Here is a discovery that you can turn to great advantage—how to serve equally delicious meals at less cost by using exclusively GOOD LUCK, the margarine with the 60-cent taste.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

ORIGINALLY scheduled for Saturday afternoon the Harding-Findlay engagement has been moved up a day and will be contested this afternoon on Fairground field. This arrangement we believe, and for once it is quite possible the majority of Harding followers agree with us, is better for Harding. If for no other reason it will allow another day for the members of the team to recover from an almost certain battering at the hands of a heavier and classier eleven. Of course it will also allow some persons to attend the Ohio State-Michigan battle who could not otherwise do so but that is not so important.

Harding is almost sure to take a decisive beating from Findlay. Four regulars are on the sidelines or are expected to be when this is written. Reduce Harding's man power to such an extent as this and it is quite possible that many a class B high school would present a good looking appearance. Findlay is not a class B school by any means and for that reason we're picking Harding to be on the short end of the count by about 25 points.

When coaches do not have a championship contender for a year or so it is a signal for the downtown coaches to launch an attack on why the team is so weak and what should be done about it. In this respect Marion is no different than other places. Dewey Bohyer has probably within the last week or so, whether he knows it or not, been accused of doing everything possible that should not have been done and nothing that should be done.

Regardless of what has been said or what will be said Bohyer is not making alibis or excuses. He has had a lot of tough breaks as far as injuries and ineligibles are concerned that have undoubtedly worked against a winning team to no small extent. Bohyer is confident, however, that after the game today, Harding will start winning at least a share of the remaining games. Harding cannot run up any brilliant record for the year if it wins all of the remaining games but it certainly can provide a lot of enjoyment to local fans if it manages to knock off Bucyrus or Mansfield or both. Harding, we believe, won't go through the season defeated in every game.

HARDING TEAM BADLY CRIPPLED

VISITING GRIDDERS FAVORED TO DEFEAT LOCAL TEAM EASILY

Presidents Without Passer or Kicker in Backfield Today; Three Regulars Out.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

A BADLY crippled and apparently somewhat dejected football team representing Harding High school takes the field at the Fairgrounds this afternoon to clash with a highly touted Findlay eleven. Harding will be the underdog in the contest if there ever was such a thing. Four of the first 11 men of the President's squad will be sitting on the sideline bench on account of injuries. With these four out Coach Bohyer will be forced to present a lineup which will be considerably weaker than the first stringers.

With the entire first string lineup in A-1 condition Harding stood to have another defeat charged to its record today but with a makeshift lineup on the field it will take a lot of inspired playing on the part of the Presidents to avert a complete rout. It would not be particularly surprising to see Harding plastered with one of the most de-

Ashland To Play Bucyrus in N. C. O. Battle Tonight

Dope Points to Maroon Defeat by 'Gator Team

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—All the dope points to a victory for the University of Florida over Chicago tomorrow, but precedent says Charlie Bachman and his 'Gators may not only find it tough to defeat the Maroons—they may find it tougher to avoid a beating.

Since 1924, none of Amos Alonzo Stagg's elevens have gone through a season undefeated. Western and Big Ten teams have run up some sizeable scores against Chicago. Teams from other sections of the country, however, have found Stagg's men inspired by the mere mention of the word "intersectional."

Chicago had little success in its own territory last season, but a journey into the east produced a Maroon victory over Princeton, while the invasion of a huge University of Washington eleven resulted in a 27 to 7 Maroon triumph.

All of the visiting teams, with the exception of Northwestern, were on their way, or had arrived in hostile territory today. Still waiting for vaccinations to declare themselves, Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, decided not to move on Champaign and Illinois until tomorrow. No new injuries or other ill luck had cropped out in the Wildcat camp and Hanely was hopeful of being able to start the same eleven that opened against Ohio State last week.

The Illini held their last hard drill yesterday and Coach Zuppke's team was ready for a big effort to halt the Wildcat Big Ten title march.

Wrigley Adds Southpaw to Corps of Hurlers

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 — William Wrigley's magnetic checkbook has drawn another veteran pitcher, Jakie May, into the Cub fold, the third since the Rogers Hornsby system of reconstruction was installed.

May, a left hander with a nearly a dozen seasons of National league service, yesterday was purchased from the Cincinnati Reds in a cash deal. Last week Lester Sweetland, another southpaw, was purchased from the Phillies, and a day later Bob Smith, a Boston righthander, became a member of the Cubs, in a cash and trade deal.

NOTRE DAME BATTLE WITH CARNEGIE TECH TOPS GRIDIRON CARD

Rockne Team Should Beat Tartans in Hard Game; Army Meets Harvard.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—The magician who could reach into his coat-tails and bring out a pink rabbit with both hands tied around his neck would not be one whit more clever than the popeyed football fan who correctly forecasts the winners in tomorrow's eastern clashes. Perhaps not in recent years have there been so many good teams pitted against elevens just a little bit worse or a little bit better.

The national champions, Notre Dame, and Carnegie Tech, take the spotlight with their intersectional battle at South Bend. Carnegie pins its faith in two hopes—first, that Notre Dame's less experienced forward wall will not stand the gaff of Tech's roaring backfield and secondly that the entire Rockne outfit has been burned out and weakened in stamina by their jousts against Southern Methodist and Navy on successive Saturdays.

The latter hope is rather weakkneed. Coach Knute Rockne used so many players against Navy that none of his regulars was taxed and there isn't any reason to believe that he is not going to face the Tech outfit with the flower of his horde of players. The swing goes to Rockne further in that he has built a special defense and attack for tech. His offensive is to be an open field game, almost certain to be highlighted by baffling plays that have a fair chance of catching the ponderous Tartan team off guard.

Crimson vs. Cadets

Major Ralph Sasse, the new coach at West Point, is moving onto Cambridge to engage Harvard in a guessing contest. Neither team has been given a real test and just what either is capable of is as mysterious as a New York murder. One thing, so they say, is certain. Harvard has a better field general than the Cadets. He is Barry Wood and if he is half as good as they rave, Major Sasse's boys are going to have a troubled afternoon

Brown, conqueror of Princeton, is invading the hosts of Yale with an outstanding machine. Gurli is a real quarterback and Link Fogarty, and Rotelli and Eddie Gilmartin match the stars of the Blue Brown's sole handicap is lack of weight and except for this should be a wide choice over Yale.

The answer to the Cornell-Princeton problem may be taken from gloomy Gil Dobie's pre-game statement. For the first time in years the veteran mentor has come out dropping optimism. He says Cornel has "a fair squad." Translated that means they have a great scoring machine with a superb back field and line. Princeton always plays a more pugnacious game late in the season and it doesn't look like that Coach Bill Roper in a week's time has been able to improve the Tigers enough to turn back the Red outfit.

Pennsylvania goes west to tackle Wisconsin with one of the strongest eastern teams. Coach Wray, making his debut with the Red and Blue, has built a speedy group around Captain Dick Gentle, Masters and Greene in the backfield and Riblett and Olson in the line.

Missouri, twice defeated, is bringing a team to New York that should yield to Chick Meehan's New York university squad without much ado Lou Little, Columbia coach, is justly worried about his affair with Dartmouth at Hanover and Vic Hanson, coach of a promising Syracuse team is in the same mood about the Syracuse-Pitt engagement.

Colgate treks west with a superb eleven to test Michigan State.

STARNMEN FIGHTING TO RETAIN LEAD IN CHAMPIONSHIP RACE

Talbot Expected To Furnish Hilltoppers Major Opposition.

SHORTLY after Harding and Findlay have battled through their annual engagement on Fairground field today in a non-league encounter Ashland and Bucyrus will be girding for an N. C. O. conflict under the mazdas of the Ashland college gridiron layout. It is the first night game of the year for either team.

Ashland has the opportunity to retain the highest point in the league standings for at least another week by a victory over the Bucyrus Redmen. An Ashland win will give the Hilltoppers a record of two victories and no defeats to just the opposite for Bucyrus. In case Galion beats Shelby Saturday the Orangemen will be snapping at the heels of the Starn coached team with two victories and one tie game but it will not be possible to overtake the Ashland crew. An Ashland win will put Bucyrus in a deadlock with Harding for the cellar post. Mansfield does not play a league game this week but meets

OHIO, MICHIGAN SET FOR ANNUAL CLASSIC

Neither Team Given Edge for Traditional Battle of Big Ten.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 17—Columbus is holding its breath. Michigan is coming to town.

Not the entire state, but the flower of its football pride—Coach Harry Kipke's University of Michigan team, conquerors of the conference champion — Purdue—and 10,000 students, alumni and friends of the Maize and Blue.

Columbus is never prouder than when entertaining the Wolverines in the renewal of a rivalry extending through 26 games and back to 1897. More than 72,000 persons will swarm through the entrances of Ohio's grey-walled stadium tomorrow to see another test of this historic rival.

Neither team can be favored to win.

The consensus is that Ohio State has the more powerful running attack, is almost on a par at passing but definitely inferior in punting, and capacity to capitalize on scoring opportunities. Barring an uneven distribution of fatal fumbles, intercepted passes, blocked punts and the like, Ohio

BID TOO HIGH

Commissioners Reject Proposal for Road Work in County.

A new estimate for improvement of the Whetstone river road in Claridon township was made by County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens yesterday following the rejection by county commissioners of the bid submitted for the contract.

The sole bid of $2,939.37 was $715 higher than the original estimate and consequently was rejected. Commissioners then ordered a new estimate made and set Thursday, Nov. 6, at 2 p. m. as the time for receiving bids on the contract.

The new estimate made by Leavens is $3,345. The road is 63 mile in length and will be improved with waterbound macadam.

Commissioners pointed out that only one bid had been received due to the low estimate made originally.

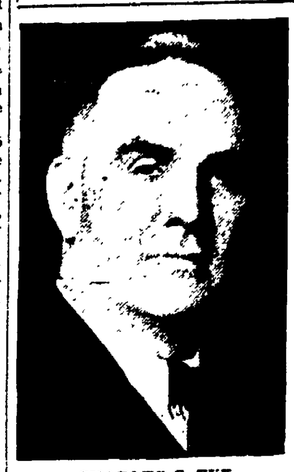
THESE CANDIDATES ASK YOUR VOTE ON NOV. 4



CHARLES C. FYE

DAVID A. BROBST

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles on county and district candidates which the Star will print before the election on Nov. 4.

TWO men who have been candidates for the position in past elections are out to win the post of sheriff of Marion county at the election on Tuesday, Nov. 4, to replace John J. Francis, who failed to win in the August primary.

Charles C. Fye, the Democratic nominee in 1922, is his party's choice once more, while his opponent, David A. Brobst, Republican, was second to Francis in the primary of the 1928 election.

Fye won the nomination from a field of six candidates at the primary and Brobst headed a slate of five Republicans, winning over Francis by a comfortable margin.

THE Democratic nominee is a blacksmith and has followed that occupation for 25 years, and has lived in Marion county 36 years. He is 55 years of age and lives at 338 Belmont street.

Brobst is a machinist at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., is 44 years of age and has lived in the county for 37 years. His home is at 394 Windsor street.

Neither of the two men has ever held public office before, although each has been a candidate for sheriff. Brobst in the 1928 primary and Fye as nominee in 1922.
